AIRLINER WITH 33 ABOARD IN COLLISION

Constellation Gashed Open By Smaller Ship Makes Safe Emergency Landing

TWO MEN ARE KILLED

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—A small private plane in a collision with a Constellation airliner, gashed open by a smaller ship, landed yesterday with a load of 33 persons unharmed. The two men in the private plane were killed, and parts of one body and pieces of their shattered craft powered down on Long Island. The engine and front part of the private plane, the body of one of the occupants and part of the body of the other were imbedded in a gashed hole in the top of the four-engine Pan American World Airways Constellation.

The plane crashed over Port Washington, N. Y., Captain George Smith skillfully landed the battered Constellation at Mitchell field, about ten miles away.

The collision occurred a few minutes after the airliner, "Monarch of the Skies," had left Laramie field for London at 4:17 p. m., carrying 23 passengers and a crew member.

Most of the passengers left for London on other planes early today.

The dead are Arthur Duttig, pilot of Portland, Conn., and passenger, Eugene Kowalczyk, of Middletown, Conn.

Those aboard the airliner escaped by a stroke of fortune when a 15 foot long and five feet wide hole gashed out of the top of the Constellation.

The front of the small Constellation plane 140 was imbedded in the rear of the Constellation's deck in a space devoted to the galley and to some made-up berths. There were no passengers or crew at the spot when the planes collided.

Knuth, pilot of the airliner, said the small plane flew into the top of the Constellation. It was daylight and the weather was clear.

Malcolm Wade, his co-pilot, said there was a sound "like a tremendous tire blowout," and the Constellation "shuddered and dropped" before it was gotten under control for a landing.

Two tires of the big plane's wheels burst when it landed at Mitchell field, an air force base. The liner's aerial had been ripped apart, cutting its radio communication.

The body of the passenger of the small plane and parts of the body of the pilot were removed from the airliner after it landed.

The Constellation's passengers were "dazed and shaken by the impact," one of them said. Another told how the passengers obeyed instructions from the steward and stewardess to strap themselves in for a landing.

J. O. Fluet, regional head of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the airliner pilot had a momentary lapse of a plane coming at a collision, but had no time to avoid a collision.

Pan American World Airways said in a statement that the gashed hole in the Constellation could not have been made except by a plane diving down directly from above.

DOUBLE DEADLINE FOR PENNA. MOTORISTS

Harrisburg, Jan. 31—(AP)—Motorists in Pennsylvania have a double deadline at midnight tonight.

After that hour all motor vehicles must display new stickers in their windshields showing their cars have been inspected.

This is also the last day for renewal of automobile drivers' licenses.

Otto F. Messner, acting secretary of revenue, warned that if the three weapons tested at Eniwetok still last spring demonstrated "a substantial gain in (explosive) energy release" over previous models.

Washington, Jan. 31—(AP)—The United States has new atomic bombs which have much more explosive energy than the old ones.

The Atomic Energy Commission which has hinted previously that it had developed more powerful weapons than those dropped on Japan or at Bikini, announced it tonight today in its fifth semi-annual report to congress.

And it said "further developments are now in progress."

It related for the first time that the three weapons tested at Eniwetok still last spring demonstrated "a substantial gain in (explosive) energy release" over previous models.

Chairman David Lilienthal made it clear at a news conference that "as used in this report" the term atomic weapon means "bomb."

But he declined comment when asked whether the United States is seeking to obtain atomic weapons other than bombs.

The commission told congress it took steps during 1948 to protect its major plants against sabotage and to provide "for the emergency defense of vital facilities against attack."

But it said "production and improvement of atomic weapons" has continued to receive its major attention. And in that department it reported "important advances" in making atomic materials and weapons, as well as in developing new designs.

"Operation Haylift" Turns To Major Problem Of Delivering Food To Isolated Districts

The week-old "Operation Haylift" bringing fodder to snowbound livestock took second place Monday to a new major problem—getting food and fuel to isolated human beings.

Harassed relief officials who marshaled planes to move fodder to livestock before snow-blocked roads could be opened, had reports from areas west of Omaha, Neb., that food and fuel were short.

The Fifth Army in Chicago reported some areas have been without rail communication since the start of the storm.

"We just don't have enough planes or time" to feed starving cattle by air, the Chicago army officer said, referring to 100,000 snow-blocked steers in Nebraska.

"To supply those cattle with one day's feed would require 500 flights. We just don't have enough."

9-Year-Old Boy Is Hero Of Troy Blaze

Troy, Jan. 31—(AP)—Nine-year-old Laverne Finnerly raced into a flame-swept farmhouse and pushed three brothers to safety through a first floor window. But he couldn't reach another brother and sister who died in the blaze.

Nine children and three adults were asleep in the two-story house at nearby Columbia cross roads when fire of an unknown origin broke out before dawn yesterday.

Gordon Finnerly, Laverne's uncle, was awakened by the smoke. He roused his wife, Snatching her 10-month-old daughter in her arms, Mrs. Finnerly ran barefoot downstairs through a wall of fire. The baby was scathed but Mrs. Finnerly was sung all over her body.

Her husband, holding a four-year-old daughter, tried to follow her. The stairs collapsed. Then he ran to a window. The flooring gave way beneath him and he and his daughter leaped to safety.

Downstairs, George Finnerly awoke and hustled Laverne, one of his seven children at the house—out the front door. But Laverne heard his brothers and sisters screaming for help.

He ran back into the fiery house and pushed Gordon, 3; Park (Turn to Page Two)

Vet Bonus and Summer Camp Move Up In General Assembly

Harrisburg, Jan. 31—(AP)—A $500,000,000 veterans bonus bill and a plan to establish a summer camp for children in Pennsylvania moved up today for a final vote in the general assembly.

The two measures were tabbed for priority action as the commonwealth's lawmakers returned to the capitol for a busy three-day session.

But the biggest assembly development will come Tuesday. Governor James H. Duff is expected then to submit the commonwealth's budget for the next two years. That will start the lawmakers to work on the real business of the session—allocating the state's revenue to various purposes.

The senate will vote finally on Duff's plan to use the $85,000,000 Indianant Gap military reservation for a summer camp for underprivileged children.

The house is expected to approve quickly the senate-passed bill authorizing a maximum $500 bonus for Pennsylvania's 1,314,000 veterans of World War Two. It requires final action by the voters in November.

The bonus measure amends the state constitution, authorizing issuance of $500,000,000 in bonds to pay the bonus. The payment would be at the rate of $15 for each month of overseas duty and $10, monthly, for domestic service.

An amendment to the constitution to become effective, requires passage by two sessions of the legislature and a favorable statewide referendum. Since the measure already has been approved by the 1947 legislature, it will, if approved by the present general assembly, be ready for the voters in the fall.

A 1947 law set up initial operation of the veterans' bonus through military affairs department but its long range financing, should the voters ratify it, will be a problem for the 1951 session of the legislature, unless a special session is called.

Two financing plans already have been suggested. The governor, in rejecting a proposed general sales tax at this session, said that levy might be needed to finance the bonus.

LI FLIES TO SHANGHAI FOR A CONFERENCE

Acting President of China Said to Be Seeking Plan For Peace With the Communists

FRONT STILL QUIET

Nanking, Jan. 31—(AP)—Acting President Li Tsung-Jen flew to Shanghai and back today in what appeared to be a futile peace effort.

Li's associates had expected him to remain at least two days in Shanghai with minority leaders discussing peace plans. His early return indicated to some observers he had no success in attempts to get the cooperation of the liberal political group, including the Democratic League, or of Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Republic.

Li's arrival in Shanghai came after there were strong rumors in Nanking that he would go to Canton shortly.

Nanking itself today approached the strange state of being neither Nationalist nor Red but an island between the two warring governments.

There was no indication that any Red officials actually have entered the capital. But they could if they wished.

The city is practically defenseless. Soldiers and naval units, once to have been the defenders of Nanking, have pulled out for the south.

Communist armies are idling six miles north of Nanking, where they have been for a week. Apparently they are waiting for action on the Red radio demand of Saturday that retired President Chiang Kai-shek and other Kuomintang officials on the Communist "war criminals" list be arrested.

All along the line peace efforts by the government seem to be bogging down. Nanking city councilmen who want a separate peace for the city have not been able to muster a quorum to call on the Communists on the north side of the Yangtze river.

Canton, Jan. 31—(AP)—Gen. Hsueh Yueh, new governor of Kwangtung province, said today he would lead China's four southern provinces in a last ditch stand against the Communists.

Hsueh, who succeeded T. V. Soong a few days ago, said in an interview that he was ready to lead the people of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Hunan and southern provinces against the Reds regardless of the outcome of peace bids by the national government.

The four province coalition already has been mapped out by the Chinese war hero, who drove the Japanese off from Changsha on three different occasions.

BUILDING HOUSING CHURCH IS DAMAGED
Pittsburgh, Jan. 31—(AP)—Damage estimated at $50,000 resulted from a fire yesterday which swept a four-story south-side building housing a church.

Sixteen fire companies fought the blaze in sub-freezing temperatures. They were handicapped by firemen suffered minor injuries.

Fire Chief William H. Davis said the entire stocks of the P. F. Gypsum Co., and the P. F. Kahler Toy Co., were ruined by smoke and water.

The congregation of the Church of God occupied the second floor of the building at 19th St. Mulberry Way.

MELLON ENDORSES DUFF TAX PROPOSAL
Pittsburgh, Jan. 31—(AP)—Reports that he is opposed to Governor James H. Duff's proposal to increase the state tax on gasoline were denied emphatically yesterday by Richard K. Mellon, Pittsburgh banker and a director of Gulf Oil Corp.

"I am strongly in favor of Governor Duff's program as a means of financing vitally important rural and urban highway improvements," Mellon said in a statement. He added:

"The views of Gulf Oil Corp. or of any other oil company on the subject can be authoritatively stated alone. However, I am reliably informed that only a certain oil companies, and by no means all of them, are opposed to Governor Duff's program."

Former Warren Countian Is Foremost In Cancer Research

Making headlines in metropolitan publications every once in a while is news of what some former Warren countian is doing in the field of scientific research or surgery and frequently these contain the name of Dr. Leonell C. Strong of Yale University School of Medicine.

Dr. Strong and his wife have just returned from Europe, where they spent three and one-half months visiting ten different countries and delivering 27 different lectures.

It will interest his many friends in this section to know that he has been appointed guest professor at the University of Heidelberg, U. S. Zone in Germany, for the spring term, April 1-July 1, under the U. S. Army reorientation program.

Dr. Strong's field of endeavor is cancer research and his latest accomplishment is the production of mice with a strong resistance against malignant tumors produced by chemical injections.

He discusses his efforts at length in the following article appearing in "Science" magazine, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

Resistance of the mice to tumors is significant because it may possibly provide a means of controlling cancer.

Dr. Strong points out that "if there be any possibility of ever eventually controlling cancer, it is now time to discuss not susceptibility to cancer in experimental animals, but resistance to cancer."

His experiments with mice also indicate that tumor-resistance is influenced by the age of the mother. He discovered that litters of mice, all born of the same female, showed marked difference in resistance. The resistance of the offspring is strongest in young breeding female and weakens with the advancing age of the female.

Dr. Strong says that tumor resistance in the mice may be connected with the father, but adds that "evidence for this concept has so far not been indicated." From all evidence now at hand, Dr. Strong concludes that the resistance is due to the fact that "something is increasing or decreasing in the mother's body that is being handed down to her offspring."

In his experiments, Dr. Strong used three groups of mice born of the same parents, with about 85 mice in each group. The first group included the first litters of mice born. The second group included litters born at a later date, while the third group had mice born at an even later date.

The test to determine tumor-resistance of the mice then began. Each mouse at the age of 60 days received an injection of methylcholanthrene, a powerful tumor-producing drug.

How many of the mice would develop tumors? How soon after the injection would they develop tumors? These were the two questions that were to be answered in experiments lasting more than two years.

The results showed a striking difference in both the number of mice affected, and the age of the mice at which the tumor appeared. At the end of 180 days after the injection, for example, three times as many mice of Group 3 had tumors than had the mice of Group 1. In other words, mice born of the older mother had less resistance to tumors than had mice born of the younger mother.

Here, then, were different reactions in brother-and-sister mice, all born of the same parents, and therefore, genetically identical.

HER SECRET STAR

Chapter 5

"SORRY to bust in on you like this," Jack Barnes said, "but the wind took the door out of my hands."

Mrs. Warren favored him with a wintry smile, but said nothing. She managed to close the storm door and put the traveling bag aside the hall. As if to bridge the awkward moment, he spoke Gertrude.

"Hello, Gertrude," he said, and stepped back into the small area which separated the storm door from the door proper. Some reverse impulse, prompted by the awareness that he was not welcome there, made him add a lie insolently.

"It is Gertrude, isn't it? Gosh, you're looking classy."

Gertrude didn't know whether to feel flattered or insulted, so she took refuge in a nervous giggle, adding fuel to a moment that was already difficult enough. Mrs. Warren obviously was trying very hard to hold on to her house while she waited for Jack Barnes to explain a situation which, to her, made no sense at all.

Either she was following the rule of "first things first," or she had forgotten all about the girl who stood, silent and withdrawn, the dimness of the hall.

Jack Barnes tried to explain. "Betty—or Miss Matthews, I mean—she's following the rule of 'first things first,' or she had forgotten all about the girl who stood, silent and withdrawn, the dimness of the hall."

Mrs. Warren's lips tightened, but only for an instant. She managed a smile of apology, then turned over and kissed her niece on both cheeks. In the confusion following the inexplicable arrival of a girl who had honestly forgotten the girl, she tried to make up for it in the warmth of her welcome.

She was still puzzled as to just why Betty Matthews had been hanging around the depot in Martin Carrollton, when she should have come straight to Carrollton as her uncle had told her to do. It seemed incredible that the girl should have been so indiscreet as to allow herself to be "picked up" by any man—much less Jack Barnes, whose cavalier behavior had been the talk of the town ever since he came out of the Army. But, being a fair-minded woman, Mrs. Warren decided to reserve judgment on these points until she knew the whole story.

Gertrude rushed forward and flung her arms around her cousin's neck, genuinely glad to welcome her. She had nothing to fear from this girl, Gertrude told herself happily. Why, poor Betty, with her pale, damp face and somber black clothes, looked for all the world like a little drowned kitten.

Mrs. Warren, more observant than her daughter, wasn't so sure about that. She had not been deceived by the strained, tired look on the girl's face. On the contrary, she had noted a dramatic quality in Betty Matthews' fragile beauty that neither the wind nor the rain nor a tiresome train journey had obscured.

Aunt Minniebelle had smiled upon Betty, but her manner toward Jack Barnes had been nothing short of insulting. The least Aunt Minniebelle could do, thought Betty, would be to thank him graciously and invite him in out of the rain. His only offense, as far as Betty could see, was the simple act of befriending her.

She was relieved when Gertrude released her, to see that Aunt Minniebelle had at last decided to be courteous to the inoffensive young man. Although Jack Barnes still stood outside the door, she appeared to be listening to what he was saying. Evidently he was explaining the situation in detail. When he had finished, Aunt Minniebelle said in a rather loud voice:

"It was very kind of you to bring Bettina I'm sure her uncle will appreciate it. Of course it was all very unfortunate."

Chapter 6

RAIN—a cold, driving rain—beat down upon New England—ten days hand-running, making gardening impossible and wasting all hopes for a long, fruitful season. Carrollton, with a Bay on one side and a chain of lakes on the other, became a place for ducks—but not for visitors.

Every night David Warren could come home, wet and tired the bone, but unfailingly good-tured; ready to regale his women-folk with the latest weather reports and the various surmises to the cause of it all.

Tonight, however, as they sat around the supper table, David Warren was aware of a tenseness in the atmosphere. He was trying his best to be gay and entertaining, and getting almost no co-operation at all.

Gertrude, who had been denied a use of her car for the duration of the storm, sat with her eyes glued to her plate, just before her resentful young self knew that the newness had worn off, and she no longer considered it necessary to impress her cousin. One of these days you'll wake up and find it's summer. The sun'll be shining, the flowers'll be blooming—and well, everything will be hunky-dory once more. Eh, Gertrude? Eh, Minniebelle?

Gertrude nodded, but did not look up from her plate.

"I hope so," Aunt Minniebelle said in a tone that was not at all optimistic.

"Then, if there's nothing unusual about this rainy spell, why are all the people who hang around the postoffice complaining about it?" Betty wanted to know.

Uncle Dave's eyes twinkled. "Could be on account of I'm a Democrat," he bantered. "They're blaming the Administration now. Want to have the whole world" thrown out?" He laughed and Betty laughed with him.

"I don't see anything, so funny about it—you being a Democrat. I mean, I should think it would be a little—embarrassing, being the only one in town. Or course they're joking when they blame the Administration for the rain. And maybe you're right. Maybe it is just their way of telling you they don't like you either."

David Warren, admittedly the most popular man in Carrollton, was accustomed to his wife's temperamental outbursts. He grinned good-naturedly and said:

"Well, maybe they don't like my politics, but I'm not changing them. Maybe they don't like me either, but I reckon I can bear it. Sure I can't. Don't know as I'd want to even if I could. Some day I want to retire and do a couple of the things I've always wanted to do."

Gertrude came to life. "What do you want to do, Father? Move to Boston or New York, or some other place where a person can really live? Oh, Father, let's!"

Gertrude, like her mother, never failed to italicize the words which she considered important.

David Warren shook his head and his grin, this time, was a little sheepish. "Sorry to disappoint you, girlie. I—well, I just want to go fishing."

MARCH OF DIMES

Only once annually does the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis conduct a campaign for collection of funds, this appeal being designated as the March of Dimes and usually set for the period of January 14-31. Through the funds collected is carried on the work of diagnosis, care of patients and provision of equipment. One-half of all money collected is kept in the country; the other half going to national headquarters as a reserve for research, equipment, and for use of those areas whose own funds have been depleted by epidemic or other cause may thus call on headquarters for help.

This past year Warren county has had only three new cases, one boy from Spring Creek still being treated at Zem Zem Hospital in Erie. Because polio patients often need care over a long period of time, the cost per patient may reach into thousands of dollars. Sometimes this care is needed for years after the initial attack. This year, besides helping the three new persons afflicted, the Warren County Chapter paid for care of several who had polio, one two, three and more years ago. One hospital bill of over $1,600 was paid for a patient in Chancellors Valley; one for about $1,800 for a Lander lad who is still at Zem Zem. Braces and a vibrator were purchased for a small boy living in Hemlock, and a packer was purchased for Warren General Hospital for use by any one needing it. The local chapter pays bills for all citizens of the county, regardless of where they are hospitalized or for how long they may need care. It may be years and, in some cases, the state takes over the care of crippled children in need of surgery, but surgery for adults, and physical therapy is a problem for the Foundation.

National headquarters of the Foundation has issued a bulleting warning that failure of this year's March of Dimes to go over the top will mean that either research or care will suffer—a calamity that must not occur because we have failed to do our part. The 1949 March of Dimes closes today but there is still time to get your contribution to your chapter officials, to the Zonta Club or to Chuck Tranter's "Please Play" competition over WNAE.

"BLACK DAHLIA" NONSENSE

About two years ago, a young woman was killed in Los Angeles, California, and the newspapers of the country gave their headlines to playing up the death of the "Black Dahlia."

Since the killing, more than fifty "confessions" have been made throughout the nation but investigation has proved all of them wrong. Now in a revival of the story, the questioning of another man is reported in detail.

Our own suggestion to the news services and to radio broadcasting stations is that they forget the "Black Dahlia" and leave it alone until somebody is convicted for the murder. In the meantime the country would like to have a rest from the speculations and deductions that have been telegraphed around as news.

A GOOD IDEA BACKFIRES

We think the Allies were right in trying and executing the surviving instigators of World War II. But it was inevitable that this new concept of war guilt would some day backfire, unhappily and embarrassingly. It has happened already, with the Chinese Communists branding Chiang Kai-shek and other Nationalist leaders as war criminals.

If they can catch them the Reds will probably make a persuasive case for themselves. Chiang did drive them into a remote corner of China after he broke with them in the Thirties. The present war is simply their breaking out of this prewar pocket. The only apparent solution for the future is to see to it that somehow the evil aggressors are always defeated in battle as a preliminary to justice.

Word has been received here that Elizabeth Taylor of North Warren is a member of the string quartet at Taylor University, which will be heard in a special radio broadcast over WFBM. Miss Taylor has also been selected to play one of the leading roles in H. M. S. Pinafire, to be presented at the University this February. Miss Lucille Corbett has recently been named as a senior member of the Student Commission at Hood College. This body is composed of students from each of the four classes who show particular interest in college activities and have a good academic standing. Miss Corbett is also president of the Hood Town Hall and a member of the Literature Club. At the First Methodist Episcopal church Family Fellowship night, a luncheon dinner will precede the classes. The feature of the evening will be a mixed quartette from the Indian reservation. The singers, Mr. and Mrs. Windsor Pierce, Arthur Pierce and Louise Gordon are great-grandchildren of Chief Cornplanter. They will sing some Seneca hymns as well as American songs.

Local Hospitals Included In Approved List of A. C. S.

The Warren General Hospital and the Warren State Hospital are included in the list of 3,150 approved hospitals in the United States, Canada, and a few other countries, just released by the American College of Surgeons in its annual hospital standardization report. Hospitals under survey totaled 47, making the approval percentage 79.7%. In 1947, 3,900 hospitals were under survey, with 3,143 approved. A new development in hospital standardization, applied for the first time in 1948, is a point rating system, which, according to Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, associate director in charge of the program, is an attempt to achieve a certain amount of precision in evaluating hospitals, with emphasis on the equality of profes-

Part of Razor Blade Removed From Throat

An unusual operation was performed at Warren General Hospital about 8:30 o'clock when Dr. E. F. Anderson removed a piece of a thin safety razor blade from the throat of Nancy Hannah, seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hannah, of Russell. The youngster, originally a patient of Dr. T. K. Larson, was taken to the hospital by Dr. Larson where Dr. Albert Eberly, x-ray specialist at the hospital, discovered by means of pictures that a foreign body was lodged in the throat of the little girl. The piece of blade was irregular in shape, comprising about one-sixth of the total size of the blade with part of the cutting edge left on it. It had lodged in the lower part of the throat. It is thought that the baby bit the piece from a whole blade which she secured in some manner.

Underfed Children Flown From Berlin

FLIGHT TO HEALTH is being undertaken by these children being sent the propeller of a Royal Air Force plane at Gatow, Berlin. They are being flown out from the blockaded German capital by the British, and their destination is areas where proper food and attention will correct the undernourishment from which they are suffering. Ever since the blockade began, Americans and British, as they did in wartime, have been flying food to the other in what has now become the world-famed Operation Vittles.

Warren Players Having Tryouts For Studio Plays

Tryouts are being held this evening and tomorrow evening, 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, at the Rapp Dance Studio, 227 Pennsylvania Avenue West, for the two one-act studio plays to be given next month by the Warren Players Club.

The studio plays will be presented for two nights this year, due to the increased club membership, and are scheduled for the second week of March.

The official function of the studio plays is to attempt something a bit experimental, and to provide an opportunity to active members who have not previously been in plays.

This year the job is being taken care of to a degree previously unheard of in Warren players. Jack Rapp is directing from show's "Bury the Dead," a dramatic vehicle which requires 20 men and eight women, covering a wide range of ages and types, none of which involve a very heavy time load.

For the second show, Ned Shulman and Monte McClure are producing an original opus titled "Killing Dr. Caligula." The authors state that this is a farcical type of murder-mystery, with a unique love interest seldom found in western stories. The cast requires 15 men and seven women. Of these the authors seek one man who can portray Lionel Barrymore, the other plays having no special requirements, and covering a wide range of types and ages again.

Even with the increased active membership in the Warren Players this year, it will not be easy to gather to large a cast which there is already the February show in rehearsal, so all active members who have ever thought of acting will be welcomed at the tryouts.

With a choice between drama and farce comedy, and a total of 50 roles to be cast, there is an unusually good opportunity to find a suitable and interesting part. Remember the vital statistics:

Beatrice Linder To Wed In California

From a holiday issue of the Los Angeles Times comes the following news of the betrothal of a former Warren resident and high school student:

The party was given in the S. Lafayette Park Place home of Mrs. LaForest Scott, mother of the bridegroom-to-be.

Miss Linder is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Van Roy Magill of Arcadia and daughter of Anton Linder of Erie, Pa. She attended Pasadena City College.

Her fiancé, a Sigma Nu, is a graduate of SC. The couple plan to live in the area after their April wedding.

Alice Acheson, Artist, Keeps State Dep't Out of Her Art

By DOUGLAS WARREN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Mrs. Dean Acheson is proud of the fact that at 40, a $50,000 of personal property of her only son, Alice Acheson, and don't realize that she is the wife of the newly appointed Secretary of State.

This unusual state of mind is because Mrs. Acheson is an artist. She is an independent artist who has learned to work backwards trying to keep the merit of her work undiluted by any luster that her husband's prominence might have added.

According to the Whyte Gallery in Washington, which has sold most of her work, few of the buyers were aware of the real identity behind the "Alice Acheson" signature. She insisted that the fact that she was the wife of a famous man never be revealed to a prospective customer for one of her pictures. Here's the way Mrs. Acheson herself explains her feeling about the matter:

"Any true art must stand completely on its own merits. If I let anything that my husband does add anything to an art form, which I am attempting to create, I wouldn't be creating anything truly artistic. Besides, I would be creating unfair competition for other artists whose struggle to get along is hard enough as it is."

She referred to as a "third generation painter." Her mother was an artist and her father's father was an artist. Her maiden name was Stanley—a wealthy Detroit family connected with the big distilling industries of Canada.

She met and married handsome young Dean Acheson in 1917 while he was a junior at Harvard Law School and while she was attending Wellesley.

Alice Acheson's talent with the brush has developed steadily over the years. Raising two daughters and a son and getting them married didn't interfere with her work.

Her studio is the attic of the Achesons' Georgetown home. In the morning, she is one of the earliest in her home starts. The studio is strictly a workshop, however.

Early morning to noon is her most productive time. She usually lunches out with friends and shops or visits during the afternoon. More of her evenings are free for work than you'd imagine for the wife of such a prominent statesman. The Achesons lead a conservative life. His new appointment will step up the tempo. But when they entertained before, it was usually a simple, informal affair and usually with the same exclusive circle of friends.

Icy Highways Are Cause Of Car Accidents

Slippery road conditions, which were blamed for three minor traffic accidents over the weekend, prevailed throughout the district today and brought a warning from Pennsylvania State Police to all motorists to drive with extreme care.

Damage estimated at $60 was caused last night when a west-bound machine operated by Donald Laufenberger, 335 Hickory street, Warren, collided with an east-bound car driven by Curt Shaw, 100 School street, Bradford on Route 6 near the east end of the Glade bridge. No one was hurt.

The other accidents occurred Friday night, one at 9:05 p. m. on Route 62, one half mile north of Warren, and the second at 9:20 p. m. on the sharp curve in Route 6 at Irvine.

The mishap in the Warren-Jamestown road involved a south-bound car operated by Donald F. Schmaeder, of R. D. 1, Lucinda, and a northbound truck driven by Raymond Shield, of Box 108, Russell. Damage was estimated at $35 and no one was injured.

Both drivers also escaped injury when the car operated by Newton H. Swanson, 18 Pennsylvania avenue, Girard, proceeding eastward, collided with a westbound auto operated by Merle E. Foust, of R. D. 3, Sugar Grove. Damage to both machines was estimated at $250.

The Sheffield man was killed when struck by an automobile driven by Orin Heeter, age 29, of DeWolfe, Elk county as he walked in the highway east of the Barnes intersection on route 943.

Investigation by the Warren State Police along with Sheriff L. E. Lander and Coroner Ed C. Lowrey divulged that Mr. Zert lunched into the Heeter car while walking along the right side of the highway. He was removed to the Borden Funeral home where examination disclosed that he had sustained fractures of both legs, broken neck, punctured lung and had a number of fractured ribs, in addition to brush burns and lacerations.

Mr. Heeter was absolved from blame in the accident.

Narren Beats Bulldogs, Franklin Whips Oilers In Section 2 Tilts

Warren High Dagoes spotted the Meadville Bulldogs an eight-point lead in the first period, and then came back strong in a Section 2 league scrap Friday night at Meadville.

In another Section 2 tilt the same night, the jet-propelled Franklin Bulldogs gained undisputed possession of first place by downing Oil City Oilers in a convincing 55-44 manner on the Oil City hard-wood.

Warren's triumph boosted the locals league stock to the 500 mark with two wins and two defeats. It also marked their return to the story column after three straight losses against Erie Tech, Franklin and Oil City.

The Titans continue their league warfare tomorrow night against Titusville on the Rockets' floor, while Franklin will put in an appearance at Meadville.

The Massmen scored the first two baskets Friday night. Then the Bulldogs found the range and took a 17-9 lead at the end of the first period. The Blue and White caught fire and outpointed the home team, 20 to 10, in second period, taking a slim two-point margin in 29-27 scoring at intermission. The second half was Warren's all the way, with the Dragons outscoring the Bulldogs, 8 to 4, in the third stanza, and 11 to 3 in the home stretch.

Gail Nelson accounted for 19 of the Dragons' points with six baskets and a seven out of eight shooting on foul shots. Ted Shattuck was credited with 11 points and Bab Brumagin with 10. Tom Allustian was top man for Meadville with eight.

Nelson, Shattuck and Brumagin played virtually the entire game. Warren and gave a good account of themselves, both on offense and defense. Coach Joe Massman experimented with the two forward positions, however, with Andy White and George Hesch running in good style. Randy Adams was a rugged game under the boards and the three points he scored—his first in league competition—is expected to bolster his confidence in trying for the scoring ring.

Warren outpointed the Bulldogs, 15 to 10, from the open court, but was the superior foul shooting of the Blue and White that really made the final scoring margin. The Massmen converted 12 of their 24 tries from the black line, while Meadville made good only one fourth of their 15 opportunities.

Speaking of foul shooting, Oil City amassed 20 points on free throws, and still missed enough variety shots to cost them the game. They had a total of 28 chances but missed 18. The Franklin crew made good seven out of 22 tries, but outdistanced the Oilers, 24 to 12, from the open court.

Motor Accidents and Routine Calls Keep Police On Jump

Several motor accidents and the usual number of routine calls took up the time of police over the weekend.

Yesterday at two o'clock, police were called to Conewango and McPherson where cars operated by James L. Zock, 26 Glade avenue, and Richard Shattuck, 11 Wilson street, collided according to the police report. Zock was attempting a left turn into McPherson street from Conewango avenue. He told police he looked into the rear view mirror and saw Shattuck's car approaching but figured he had enough time to make the turn. Shattuck's car struck the Zock vehicle and then caromed off into a telephone pole. Shattuck was taken to Warren General Hospital where he was given emergency treatment for lacerations on the forehead and scalp. He returned to Warren General Hospital this morning for x-rays. Zock was uninjured. Damage to Zock's car was estimated at $40 and to the Shattuck car about $350.
